

WORKSHOP

5th
November
2019

on

Refugees' Health Integration

organized by the Refugee Health Integration project (ReHIn)

Co-ordinated by Karolinska Institutet

Welcome to participate in our workshop and contribute to the project's understanding of the current needs of refugees relating to the health systems in the EU.

When?

Tuesday, November 5th, 10:00 – 16:30, at Karolinska Institutet, Stockholm, Sweden.

The project's aim is to create web-based educational resources to raise awareness and enable integration of refugees into the EU health culture and system.

1. To connect:

What?

The purpose of this meeting is to connect non-profit organizations with academic institutions in four different countries to initiate discussions and identify collaborations.

and

2. To inform:

To learn from each other; to understand the needs of the refugees in regard to the EU health culture and challenges of the health services and inform the resources we are going to implement.

Why?

An objective of ReHIn is to support the integration of refugees in terms of using the health services. The web-based resources will provide information regarding the rights and the use of the health systems and will be made available in different languages.

To be able to develop these resources, we will need to understand the educational needs of refugees regarding the healthcare system better.

We are therefore inviting you to this meeting as we believe you and your organization can help us. You are also welcome to give a short presentation regarding the organization you represent.

RSVP

Details about the workshop and the social lunch will be provided upon registration.

Registration: <https://bit.ly/2IVIdqX>

Contact

Contact person: Project manager, Natalia Stathakarou, Natalia.Stathakarou@ki.se

Principal Investigator: Klas Karlgren

Karolinska Institutet

The project is a collaboration of: Karolinska Institutet, Sweden; University of Nottingham, UK; Aristotele University Thessaloniki, Greece; Universitat Politècnica de València, Spain.